Biography

22-year-old Tobtok /aka/ Tobias Karlsson, is one of the latest and most exciting musical exports calling from Uppsala, Sweden.

Tobtok celebrated a year in cancer free remission last year with the release of his track 'Savanna', a track he started writing the day after his year check-up out of happiness. Savanna later went on to be signed to the Parisian label 'Kitsune' as part of an EP release after Tobtok's remix of "Years & Years – Real". The remix took him to new levels and got him noticed by the well known French label, which was also exclusively premiered on Majestic Casual. The EP was supported by a host of online channels, including Indie Shuffle, The Vibe Guide, Dancing Astronaut and more.

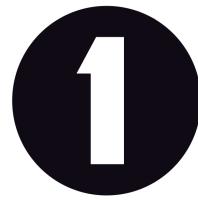

Tobtok signed to Christian Tattersfield's label 'Good Soldier Records' and Good Soldier Publishing in 2014, joining artists such as The 1975, Birdy and Oliver Nelson. His first release on the label was "Higher" which featured vocals by Emil Heró from the Swedish Indie-export "Urban Cone". Higher was supported with 8x BBC Radio 1 plays and made "hype track of the week" by Zane Lowe with additional plays from Pete Tong, Annie Nightingale and Phil Taggart. A wealth of online support was also provided and Higher hit No. 1 in Hype Machine.

During 2014 he got the job of remixing some of the best artists of the year, including The Magician's hit Sunlight ft. Years & Years, Zak Waters, Lemaitre, Charlie Winston, Blonde, Icona Pop and Ella Henderson. 2014 ends perfectly with DJ Mag calling him "Man of the moment".

During the very beginning of 2015 Tobtok signed to one of the biggest DJ agencys in the world, 'Connected Artists', alongside heavyweight names such as Avicii, Alesso, Sebastian Ingrosso, Axwell, Otto Knows and more. Tobtok is now working on his second track for Good Soldier due for release in spring 2015.

TECH PRODUCER

We reveal some handy tips and tricks to help you on the road to wicked productions...

KILLER SOUNDS

How to create the freshest sounds on the dancefloor...

TO TOK'S SLICK SOUND DESIGN

"Tobtok is the man of the moment, dropping choice cuts for the Kitsune label. Here is how he gets his Killer Sounds..."

"Music making for me is very natural, and in many ways, structured process, yet free of rules. It's worth mentioning that I make all my productions in Reason, software made by the Sound Designers Project."

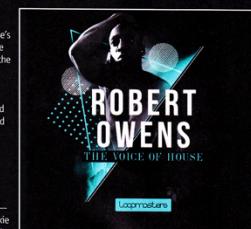

"I always start with a chord progression; usually I have a saw synth or a piano as a base. Around it I start making a simple draft of some kind of structure, as well as a basic drum pattern. When I have a simple idea like this I start building on it properly, finding the right sounds and tweaking them. The interesting thing about Reason is that the software has lots of built-in effects, so whenever I use it is basically within the program. Now, I use a lot of samples in my music, with most of them being drum sounds. There are ways to bring in other sounds, like using a sampler, so basically if you have a sample archive of an old synth, you can use it with Reason's NN-XT."

"My favourite device in Reason is the powerful Thor synth, which can be heard in more or less all my productions. One important fact about my sounds is that I rarely use any preset sounds, but make everything from scratch. For my most recent single 'Higher' I started out with a simple draft that was just under two minutes long, when I passed it on to Emil Herd who then recorded vocals on that clip."

"The production itself is actually quite simple, the key elements are home-recorded guitars that are built around a saw synth hook, with some funky top drums. The chord progression is the same throughout the song, which is a challenge because you have to keep it interesting whilst being so simple in its composition — and that's how I get my Killer Sound!"

SAMPLETANK: ROBERT OWENS THE VOICE OF HOUSE MUSIC

HERE'S a treat for house music producers — a chance to get the hit-making voices of one of house's vocal legends onto your tracks. Robert Owens' 'The Voice of House Music' is a sample-pack filled with the vocal delights of the man himself.

Coming from a gospel choir background, honing his craft in the poorer districts of Chicago, Robert turned to music as a way of escaping the depressed 'blue collar' city. His need to express music turned him into a songwriter and the underground hero of Chicago, led to him hooking up with house legend Larry Heard. The pair formed Fingers Inc, along with Ron Wilson, releasing a few singles 'You're Mine/It's Over', the 1988 long-player 'Another Side'. In 1989 Frankie Knuckles called upon him to record a track with the Def Mix posse — dubbed 'David Morales, Satomi Tomie and Frankie himself'. Among the tracks on the 1990 'Fingers' EP single 'I'll Be Your Friend' finally catapulted Robert on to dance music's main stage, a classic in the making. Now his vocals are available for anyone to use in this latest sample-pack from Loopmasters.

Robert Owens is easily one of the world's most in-demand session vocalists and the fact that producers can now have their very own library of authentic vocals to add to their productions is staggering. 'The Voice of House Music' comes with over 700MB of royalty-free loops, samples and stems, plus a choice of rearrange and a huge collection of spoken and sung short phrases that can be used to create your own tracks.

A really great pairing, bringing the elite vocals of Robert Owens to producers everywhere, a vocalist that has provided many hits over the years, in an affordable package for DJs and producers to use creatively in their music. 'The Voice of House Music' is an inspirational sample pack that comes highly recommended.

SYNTORIAL
AUDIBLE GENIUS

BINGABLE to divert away from factory presets in compositions has always been a grapple for many producers, but software manufacturer Audible Genius have developed a plug-in that will help with just that. The plug-in, Syntorial, is a comprehensive sound design system developed to guide the user through how to programme synth patches, with a series of video demonstrations and interactive challenges.

Syntorial starts users from the ground up, thus limiting initial editing options. This system proves massively effective, as the user isn't 'pushed into to deep end' with countless modulation and patching possibilities from the start. It boasts over 200 interactive lessons that will help the user understand everything from identifying raw waveforms, to taking full advantage of the creative effects on offer.

Different lessons and challenges are separated into modular sections of numerous demonstration videos. The user will eventually be tested in a multiple-choice quiz.

This allows producers to understand the many different sections and complexities that constitute a modern synthesiser.

The built-in synth, Primer, can also be used when not learning, by simply opening it up and a demo track will play. Also included in Syntorial's package, is a lesson dedicated to Cakewalk's soft synth ZETA+2. This includes 37 extra tutorial videos, and helps the user implement everything they've learnt in Syntorial in the more in-depth ZETA+2.

All in all, Audible Genius' Syntorial is an excellent tool for budding sound designers and producers/musicians alike. And whilst its primary function is educational, the free Primer soft synth makes it a perfect fit for budding producers.

An incredible 2014 continues for the Swedish superstar as he takes us Higher

Tweet

Interview by Dan Prince

Tobias welcome to DMCWORLD, where on planet earth are you today?

"Hi Dan! I just got home from an intense week of work in London yesterday, so I'm back in my hometown Uppsala and brought my managers with me from the UK! Can't say I'm too excited to be back in cold Sweden."

So high fives to Pete Tong at the moment in the Karlsson household with 'Higher' receiving two spins in a row on his show. Where were you though when Zane Lowe dropped it as his 'next hype' track on Radio 1?

<https://soundcloud.com/tobtok/sets/higher-ft-emil-her>

"Radio in general isn't really a big thing here in Sweden, but I've come to understand the level of importance Radio 1 has to the global electronic wave over the last couple of months. To be honest it was absolutely overwhelming, it was kind of a tearjerker for me hehe. The specialist DJs at R1 are so important and have so much influence in the music industry these days, so it felt really good to be acknowledged and get their support on my music. You could say it's like getting "made!"."

The record was a year in the making, you wrote down some thoughts that were going through your mind at the time, handed them to Emil Hero of Urban Cone fame and twelve months later, the world is dancing to it! How did the whole hook up with Emil happen in the first place?

"I've been kind of aware of his work through mutual friends and got introduced to him when he DJ'd in Uppsala as Urban Cone (which is a famous indie band here in Sweden). We kind of clicked and decided that we should definitely make something together. I sent over a clip to him and it all led to "Higher". Kind of a simple and random process - it's just life I guess."

You have a huge EP swinging our way on Kitsuné coming out, please talk us through the tracks on this stunning release...

Under the reliable Kitsune banner, rising indie dance advocate Tobtok has bought some Swedish efficiency to the more chic ranks of European club culture. Back on the label with a four-track EP offering, the Savanna EP's finest moment comes one step after its namesake offering. A finely crafted song with distinct melodic stamina, Hoodlem's top tier vocals are the icing on the cake that makes “Free” one of the more definitive insights into Tobtok's prominent hold on the genre here in 2014. If you loved his inaugural remix for the label back in February and are keeping a vetted interest in the power players of dance music's retro favouring remits then the latest from this Swedish maestro is not to be missed.
